

What is One Million Minutes?

The goal of the Million Minute Family Challenge™ is to have families across the United States log one million minutes of game play time. To give you a perspective of how long one million minutes is, we have accumulated some interesting facts!

FACT: If you let your hair grow out for one million minutes, it would be 11.5" longer.

FACT: If you let your car idle for one million minutes, it would use 12,500 gallons of gas.

FACT: In one million minutes, over 113 billion aluminum cans are recycled.

FACT: Recycling just 834 aluminum beverage cans would save enough energy to run a 100-Watt bulb for one million minutes.

FACT: In one million minutes, about 171 trillion email messages are sent generally.

FACT: It takes Mars about a million minutes to orbit the Sun.

Have you ever stopped to think about exactly how long one million minutes is

16,666.6 Hours

694.4 Days

99.2 Weeks

22.8 Months

1.9 Years

Do you know what the average person could do in the next one million minutes

- Listen to Katy Perry's Firework 264,312 times
- Take 125,000 showers.
- Watch Mr. Popper's Penguins 10,526 times
- Burn over 5,133,000 calories ballroom dancing.
- Fly round trip from New York to Los Angeles 1,626 times

Visit www.millionminute.com or call 800-524-4263 for more information on the Million Minute Family Challenge.

Supported By:

PATCH®

